

Antonio Aquino

Assistant Professor (Rtd-B)

antonio.aquino@unicz.it

+393444300265

Catanzaro, Italy

EDUCATION:

EDUCATION:

Doctor Europaeus in
"Functional
Neuroimaging" (2015),
Chieti-Pescara
University.

Master Degree in Psychology (2010),
Chieti-Pescara University

I am an academic with a PhD in Psychology. Currently, I am an Assistant Professor at the Magna-Graecia University. As social psychologist, I am interested in studying the interaction between individual and contextual factors. My primary area of research is the psychology of attitudes. Within this area, I have a number of research interests, including: (a) the role of affective and cognitive processes in attitudes, (b) attitude ambivalence, (c) how individual differences influence attitude processes. Through dedication and teamwork I aspire to become a well-rounded social psychologist capable of making meaningful contributions that have an impact on social world

CERTIFICATIONS:

National scientific qualification as Associate Professor in Social, Work, and Organizational Psychology
(2023-2034)

SKILLS:

Strategies for effective persuasive communication

Strong interpersonal and communication skills

EXPERIENCE:

- Assistant Professor of Social Psychology
- Coordinator of National Working Group "Building Internodes"
- Guest Editor for the Special Issue «Attitude and Attitude Change»
- Teach courses on social psychology, integrating theoretical and practical components.
- Conduct research on attitude and person-context interaction
- Supervise undergraduate and postgraduate students.